WEST VIRGINIA BRIEFS

Prumfield, of Texas, who are visiting here. While playing, the boy fell through an air shaft and a skylight into the physician's office.

HUNTINGTON: That the lunacy commission created by the last legislature has no jurisdiction in cases where felony is charged, is held by the Cabell County Commissioners, which refused to rule on the sanity of Robert Bales, who is in jail here on a robbery charge.

feature, "Ransom's Folly," will be the top piece. Mabel Trunelle, Edward Earle and Marc McDermott are the principal actors. The picture is from Richard Harding Davis's famous book in vivid action—action that rips along with the abandon of red blooded men. Richard Harding Davis has never been surpassed. Slippery Slim will furnish the comedy.

HUNTINGTON: Held in Cincinnati, O., annually for years past, the Ohio Valley Improvement Association will be urged by prominent Huntington men to hold its 1916 convention in this city.

CHARLESTON: The state public service commission suspended the excess assessment of ten cents charged passengers who tender cash fares instead of tickets to the Coal and Coke railroad conductors, because no cash rebate slip was given.

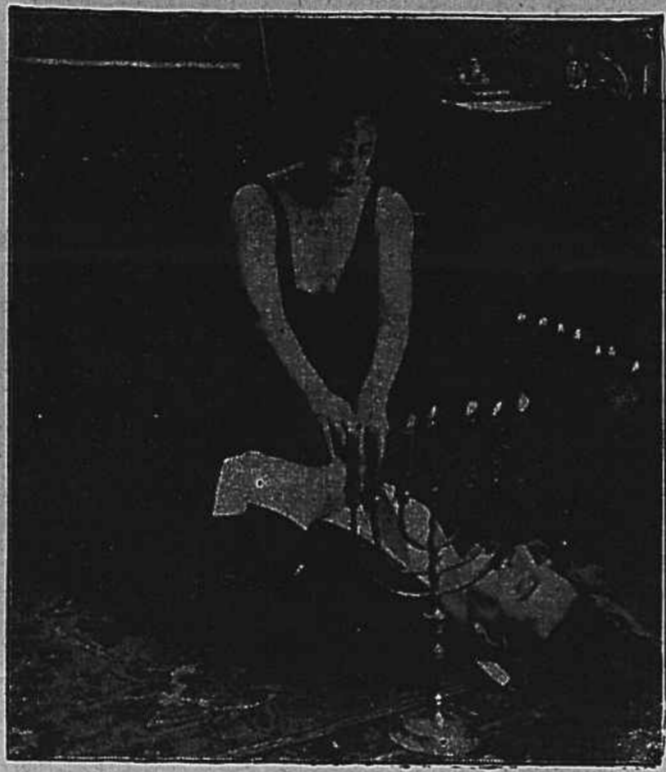

HUNTINGTON: The new divorce law of West Virginia, which went into effect May 20, is responsible for a decrease of seventy-five per cent in the number of cases brought in the courts here. The decrease is in spite of the fact that the new law makes divorce much easier than under the old code.

PARKERSBURG: Frank Collins, 25, of William street, was killed when struck by a falling derrick at the Keenan Stone Company's plant, where he was employed.

work in the studio. With me it is all real. If the heroine suffers, I suffer. If she is glad, I am glad. I can't help it. It is my method of acting."

The great spectacle, "Salambo," adapted for the screen from the story by Gustave Flaubert is the big offering at the Orpheum theater today.

This titanic photodrama is said by critics to far surpass anything yet attempted in the way of a spectacular drama and the gorgeous costumes and sublime settings are the greatest the naked eye has yet looked upon. The story tells of the days of the destruction of ancient Rome and the fall of Carthage, is replete with thrilling old-time battle scenes, and shows the important roles, is the chief offering today at the Robinson Grand. Miss Nansen was recently asked if she did feel all the emotions she portrayed when acting, and she said, "Yes, I must confess that in defiance of all the learned doctors of the drama, I do really feel poignantly every movement. I let myself go and be carried away on the waves of whatever emotion I may be portraying. My tears are real, my laughter is genuine. When so approached, Rabbi Silver declared, one will no longer impugn the supreme religious and ethical value of the Bible; because the fact that many of its historical

RABBI SILVER WILL SPEAK AT SERVICES

To Be Held by Reformed Temple of Jews in the Masonic Temple Tonight.

The Reformed Temple Emmanuel of this city will hold its next fortnightly services at 8 o'clock sharp this evening in the Masonic temple. Rabbi Maxwell Silver will officiate and preach. The subject of Rabbi Silver's address will be "Israel and the Nations."

On the first fortnightly services of Temple Emmanuel on Friday evening, October 9, Rabbi Silver addressed an excellently attended and enthusiastic congregation on "A First Lesson in the Modern Interpretation of the Bible."

"The Bible," Rabbi Silver said, "is the most misunderstood collection of books in creation, which accounts for its being so incomparably misused and abused." He emphasized the fact that the Bible is not one book written by one person at one time, but is a collection of a great number of books, produced during a thousand years of Israel's history written and compiled by hundreds of Israel's prophets and sages, which fact again accounts for the Bible's various spiritual and ethical heights of its teachings. Also, the Bible must not be studied primarily as a book of history, though here and there it relates history; or as a book of science, although here and there it makes scientific observations, which may or may not agree with modern science, but is to be studied primarily, for such was also the primary intention of its many seers, as a book containing mainly

Rheumatic Fever

Surrenders to Anti-Kamnia Tablets

In the treatment of Rheumatic Fever many physicians employ purgatives, but Dr. M. F. Freed thinks that a mild laxative is better. When the patient is bilious he gives calomel in small doses, one-fifth of a grain every hour until a grain has been taken. Then after four hours he gives the patient a half ounce of citrate of magnesia with syrup of lemon to disguise the taste, or he keeps the bowels open with the mild laxative "Aloidsin." The diet should be light, and all animal food should be excluded as far as possible from the diet. For the pain and fever he has found nothing equal to Anti-Kamnia Tablets, giving two tablets every 3 to 4 hours as required. These tablets may be obtained from all druggists in any quantity desired. Ask for Anti-K Tablets. Unexcelled for Headaches, Neuralgias, and All Pain.
